324-326 SMITH ST., WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG which has become one of the leading cities of the Dominion can boast of the most rapid growth of any city in the world. Just thirty years ago the site was then bare prairie with a few rough buildings occupied by the Hudson Bay Company and a score or so of aggressive pioneer settlers. The conditions are changed in a wonderful manner. Immense buildings of brick, stone and marble thronged with a population approaching the Hundred Thousand figure, replaces the few shanties and their Indian and half-breed inhabitants; whilst the many lines of Railway and Electric Street Cars take the place of the groaning and squeaking Red River carts.

Every description of manufactured and raw products are handled and in many instances also manufactured here. Another remarkable change caused by the advance of settlement is the moderation of the climate extremes. Building has been going on nearly every day during the past winter, a feat deemed impossible a very few years ago.

Churches, Colleges and first-class Educational facilities abound. The Dominion and Municipal Public Buildings are a credit to any city. Many miles of Asphalted Streets and Granolithic Sidewalks bear witness to the "go ahead" character of Winnipeg's citizens.

Being the head quarters of the Commercial interests of the immense west, with its rapidly growing production of grain and farm produce guarantees the solidity of its commercial supremacy.

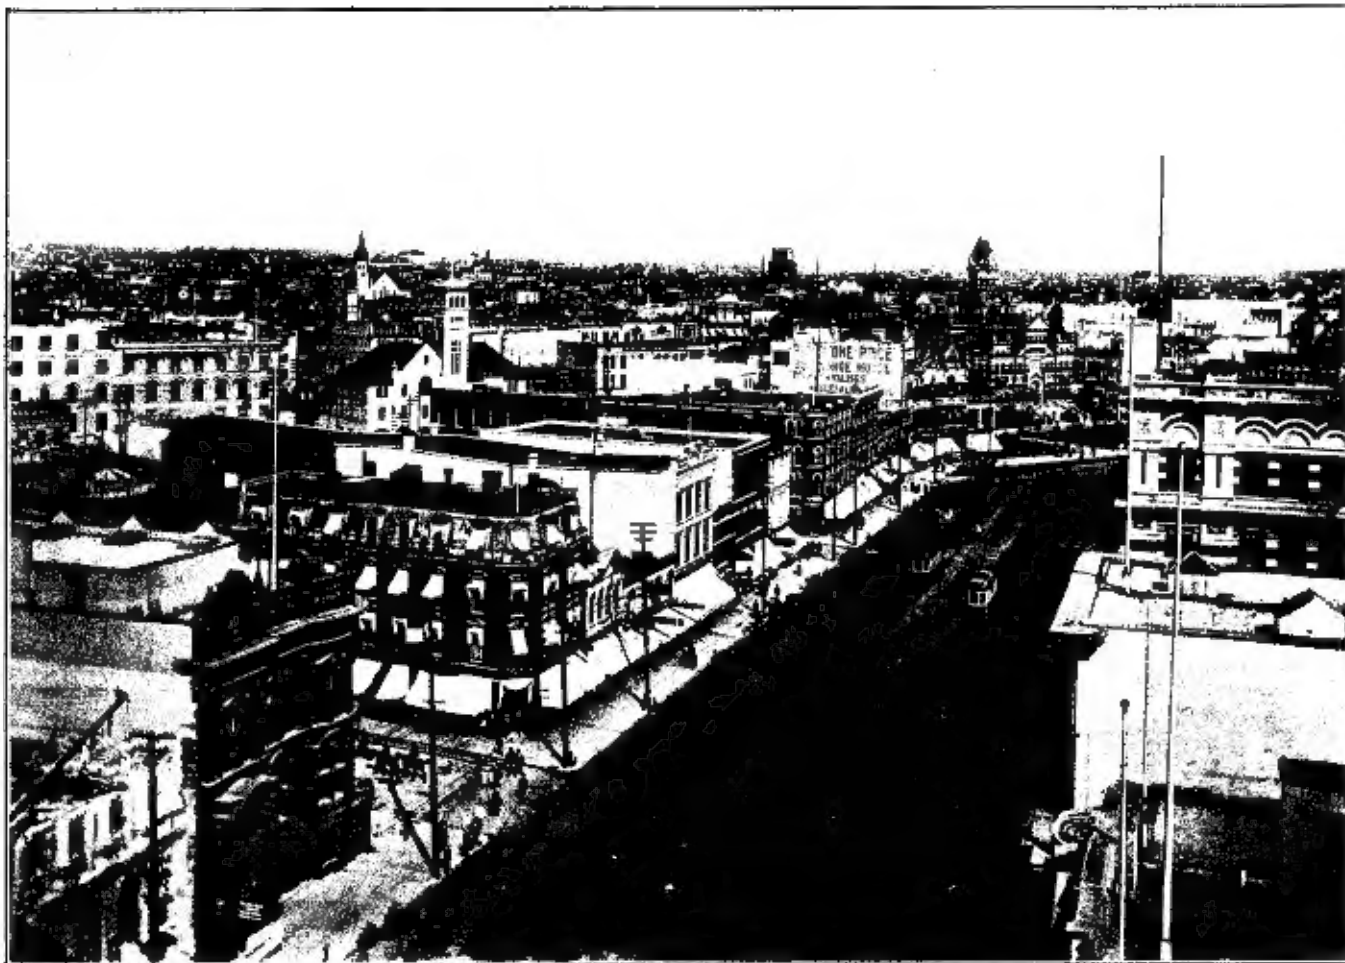

The whole of the Transcontinental Railway Traffic goes through the city.

Main street both in its length and width is one of the finest streets in the world.

Winnipeg and its District offers many splendid chances for both large and small investors. Winnipeg has many interesting historical events in its past history, records of which are to be easily found by those interested.

The city has many pleasant drives and pretty spots. The Parks under the control of the City Authorities are rapidly becoming places of beauty.

All tourists passing to and fro over the different railways should stop over here for a visit and we can assure them that it will not be time lost.
